

$$f = 490 \text{ Hz (2 s.f.)}$$

19

D

The glass block has higher refractive index and the speed of wave and hence the wavelength is smaller.

The number of wavelengths within the thickness of the glass block is more than the same thickness in air. Hence, central maximum position where the 2 waves have no path difference is above the original position.

20

R

9

10