

8	(a)	A, C, B	B1
	(b)	For B, magnet experiences larger opposing force / experiences opposing force throughout its vicinity in B. For C, magnet experiences opposing force only when it enters and exits. because current can only flow in only one direction in C but current can flow in both directions in B / independently (or equivalent)	B1 B1 B1