

21. Ans: A

According to $R = \frac{\rho L}{A}$, if, as L increases, A also increases, then the increase in R will not be as great. So the gradient of the graph will become gentler.

Similarly, if, as L increases, A decreases, then the increase in R will be greater. So the gradient of the graph will become decrease.