

Q22

Based on Lenz's law, the direction of the induced current in the inner loop should be in same direction of the current in the outer loop to oppose the decrease in B -field from the outer loop.

The induced current decreases over time such that when the current in the outer loop drops to zero, the induced current in the inner loop also drops to zero.

Ans: A