

	Option A is NOT a radioactive decay, since radioactive decay is spontaneous.
30	Ans: C A – The stability of the nucleus depends on the binding energy per nucleon, not the binding energy. B – The reaction can still occur provided energy is given to the reactants. D – The half-life of a radioactive isotope is a constant for a given radioactive isotope. C is correct because of the principle of conservation of momentum.