

14
L2

Solution: A

Since displacement towards the right is taken as positive, we can label the directions of displacement of air molecules as follows:

It can be seen from the figure that at point A, it is a region of compression as air molecules on the left side of A is displaced to the right and on the right side of A, they are displaced to the left. Hence A has the maximum pressure.

15

Solution: D