

4 L3	Solution: D Consider forces on the object when it moves upwards and it falls. The net force in the downward motion is smaller than that in the upwards direction. The average deceleration in the downward motion is lower than the average acceleration in the upward motion. Hence the time taken to rise is shorter than the time taken to fall.
5	Solution: C	