

13.	Ans: D Principle of superposition states that when two waves of the same type meet at a point, the resultant displacement is the vector sum of the displacement that the individual waves will make at that point. Hence, we must first find the resultant amplitude of the wave before determining the total energy using $E \propto A^2$
14	Ans: C