

		constant.
5	D	Take vertically upwards as positive direction, the acceleration (g) of the ball before and after the collision with the ceiling is negative (downwards). During collision with the ceiling, the ball experiences an downward force from the ceiling and together with its weight leads to a larger negative (downwards) acceleration.

2

6

c

For the bob