

Q10 The pressure of a gas is derived from the forces of collision between the molecules and the container walls, and not intermolecular collisions nor the energy transfer to the walls.

C will lead to a decrease in pressure instead, as the time interval between collisions will increase.

Answer: A

Q11 Using the equation $Q = mc\Delta T$