

		electrons).
29	C	As the nucleus is very small compared to the atom, there are a lot of space, hence the alpha particles can pass through. When the α-particles come very close to the gold nucleus, they experience a large repulsive force and hence can deviate at large angle
30	C	A beta decay will result in no change of nucleon number and ± 1 in proton number