

14 B

When the basketball is pumped, work is done on the air in the ball to cause an increase in pressure. Work done on the gas is positive.

Since this process is a fast process, little to no heat exchange happens and hence $Q = 0$

By 1st law of thermodynamics, the internal energy increases which accounts for the increase in temperature of the system.

15 B