

24	D	The current in P produces a magnetic field along the circumference of coil Q in the clockwise direction. This magnetic field produced is parallel to the current in each part of coil Q, hence by Fleming's left hand rule, there is no magnetic force induced on coil Q in all directions. Options A and B: wrongly use 'Like currents attract' concept.
25	B	n is the number of turns per unit length of solenoid